Did you know?

That the Honour Board commemorating the lives of TSS Boys lost in WW1 in the St Alban’s chapel has 2 gold lines painted about half way down the board.

This is because Headmaster Horace Henry Dixon in 1919 was in chapel, reading from the Honour Board list, boys names that had perished in WW1, when he came to the name Hamilton. He read it out, and to his surprise Hamilton piped up “But, I’m here Sir”.

He had not died in battle, but was alive and well at the school. The name was then removed and 2 gold lines replaced it.
