A poem submitted and published in The Southportonian in 1908. Author unknown.

The sea breeze at your portal, the sea wave at your gate
The forest crown immortal
Are emblems of your fate

Of youth in blossom breaking,
Of song and hope and joy
Of all things fair awaking
The manhood in a boy

The bright school flag is o’er you,
The Queensland skies above
And golden hours before you
To labour and to love

Then brain and body bracing
The loved school colours wear
And patient self-effacing
Go forth to do and dare.